

28-Day Meal Planner

Pin this to the fridge. Codes point to the recipe chapter; * means leftovers or a freezer portion. Every day also has tea and coffee with milk, six to eight glasses of water, and the walk; the soups are eaten with an egg, cheese or a slice of gluten-free bread; the marked evenings have a glass of milk.

My Own Week

Write your own week from the recipes you liked. The rules: gluten-free by nature first, labelled products second, nothing unread; 25 g of fibre or more (oats, beans, seeds, fruit, vegetables, the wholegrain loaf); 25 to 30 g of protein at lunch and dinner; the calcium (three dairy or fortified portions); six to eight glasses of water; the walk.

The Fridge Card: Gluten-Free by Nature, Read the Label, Never

Cut out and keep on the fridge. The rule: build the plate from the first column, read the label every time on the second, and leave the third.

Gluten-free by nature (never a question)	Read the label every time	Contains gluten: leave it
Meat, poultry, fish, shellfish, eggs (plain, unprocessed)	Sausages, burgers, meatballs, pies, breaded or battered anything, ham and cold meats, pate, fish in sauce	Wheat, barley, rye, spelt, kamut, triticale, semolina, durum, couscous, bulgur, freekeh, seitan
Milk, cream, butter, cheese, plain yogurt	Flavoured yogurts, processed cheese slices, blue cheese (a few), ice cream with bits	Ordinary bread, rolls, wraps, pitta, naan, crumpets, crackers, biscuits, cakes, pastry, pizza, pasta, noodles, breakfast cereals, ordinary oats
Fruit and vegetables, fresh, frozen and canned plain; potatoes; beans, lentils, chickpeas; nuts and seeds plain	Baked beans, canned soups, ready meals, chips from a fryer shared with battered fish, dry-roasted or flavoured nuts, dried fruit dusted with flour	Beer, lager, ale, stout (barley); malted drinks; barley water; wheat beer
Rice, corn, polenta, quinoa, buckwheat, millet, sorghum, teff, tapioca, chestnut, potato flour, cornflour	Gluten-free bread, pasta, oats, flour blends and cereals: only the ones labelled gluten-free; spice mixes, curry powder, mustard, baking powder, cocoa	Gravy granules, most stock cubes, soy sauce, malt extract, barley malt flavouring, seitan, wheat-based thickeners
Oil, vinegar (except malt, which is in question), herbs, spices, salt, pepper, honey, sugar, jam, dark chocolate	Stock, tamari, ketchup, brown sauce, salad dressings, mayonnaise, salsa, pesto, chutney, communion wafers, medicines (ask the pharmacist)	Anything 'may contain' where you have reacted before, and anything a waiter cannot vouch for
Tea, coffee, water, wine, cider, spirits (all of them, including whisky)	Flavoured coffees, hot chocolate mixes, oat milk (must be certified), smoothies from a bar	Oat milk that is not certified; 'wheat-free' (which is not the same as gluten-free)

The label. In Britain, Europe, the United States, Canada and Australia, 'gluten-free' on the packet is a legal claim (under 20 parts per million everywhere but Australia and New Zealand, where it means no detectable gluten). Wheat, barley, rye and oats must be named in the ingredients in bold in Britain and Europe; wheat must be named in the United States. 'May contain' is the manufacturer's caution and is your judgement, with the dietitian's advice.

Weekly Shopping Lists

Each list covers every recipe cooked that week for two people, including the batches that feed the following days and the freezer; leftovers are not listed twice. Cross off what is already in the cupboard. Every week, and read the label every time: certified gluten-free oats, a labelled gluten-free stock (cubes or pots), gluten-free tamari, a gluten-free wholegrain loaf (kept in the freezer, a slice at a time), gluten-free baking powder, single spices in jars, and the gluten-free pasta. Never in question: eggs, milk, yogurt, cheese, meat, fish, fruit, vegetables, potatoes, rice, beans, lentils, nuts, seeds, oil, butter.
